The significance of the study could be emphasized by briefly highlighting its broader implications for stakeholders, such as informing policy or strategic decisions for manufacturing firms. Additionally, mentioning how the research contributes to existing literature, particularly in the context of lease financing for manufacturing firms in Kenya, would strengthen its relevance.</li><li>ii. Including a specific example of how the findings could be applied in practice, especially by firms or policymakers, would make the abstract more actionable.</li><li>iii. On the other hand, certain details could be streamlined for conciseness. For example, the mention of ethical compliance, such as obtaining a research permit from NACOSTI, might be more appropriate in the methodology section rather than the abstract. Similarly, listing specific diagnostic tests may not be necessary unless they directly influenced the study's conclusions.</li></ul> By incorporating these adjustments, the abstract could better engage academic and practical audiences alike.
